August 2019 - Donald J. Quinn II

We would like to recognize Donald Quinn II with Quinn & Quinn, P.C.

Donald Quinn II is the managing attorney of Quinn & Quinn, P.C. He entered private practice with his father in 1981 and is now practicing with his son, Matthew. When asked if he could recall any cases he has assisted #MilitaryMatters with that really tugged at his heart, his answer clearly defines his mindset when helping his clients; “They all pull at your heart strings.”

While Donald never served in the military, he has known many who have. He feels an affinity with veterans from his father’s crewmates of the USS LSM-201 during the Iwo Jima Campaign, to the men and women of Korea and all the actions thereafter. The strongest of these affinities seems to be with the survivors of Vietnam. He will do whatever he can to help in the areas in which he is experienced, primarily focusing on the probate and estate planning venues.

When not practicing law, he enjoys spending time with his wife, their 5 children, and extended family. He is an avid online gamer. World of Warships is currently his favorite. He enjoys being able to connect and talk to people from all walks of life. With the spare time he has left after leading his online group to success on the high seas, he enjoys tinkering with his old J20 Jeep Truck.

One of Donald’s favorite quotes he shared is attributed to Abraham Lincoln, “A lawyer’s time and advice is his stock and trade.” His compassion, willingness to accept almost any case, and go out of his way to connect veterans with the resources they need have earned Donald the Military Matters Spotlight for August.
